

An aerial photograph of a tropical coastal area. In the foreground, there are several palm trees and the dark, tiled roofs of buildings. A large, well-maintained green lawn or golf course stretches across the middle ground. To the right, a sandy beach meets the ocean. The water is a vibrant blue-green color with gentle waves. In the background, a long, low mountain range runs along the coast under a clear sky. Two small, isolated rock formations are visible in the distance on the left side of the frame.
